Dear f-mail,

Our school printer is really slow and makes a lot of noise in the classroom when we are all working. My friend made a joke out of it and said it could be in the charts at Number One! Sometimes when the teacher is not looking, a pupil gets up and entertains the class by dancing behind the teacher's back when the printer is printing! It makes a terrible sound!

Gurminder Chana, age 10, Leeds

Dear f-mail,

If I had a cool set of wheels and a universal passport (with a decent picture in it!), I would ride to the weirdest place. I would go back in time to see the dinosaurs and cave men and I would teach them a thing or two. After teaching the cave men English, I would set back off in time to see if God did create Adam and Eve, and teach them English as well, tell them not to eat the famous fruit and I would also kill the famous serpent. Then I would go home and ask dad: "what's for tea?"

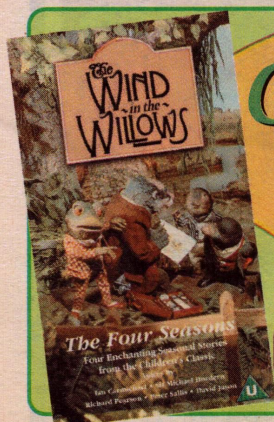

Gem Hodgson, age 12, Silsden

Dear f-mail,

On hearing and reading about the nuclear tests carried out in India and Pakistan, I felt shocked that their intelligence and resources are being used for instruments of war. But equally Britain (who supported the French nuclear tests), America and Russia must set an example to other countries, by stopping the arms race. Should we not, therefore allocate our resources in America, England, India and Pakistan to the health services, education and the poor and needy? Or will this be the beginning of the third World War?

Imran Nanji, age 13, Orpington

We hope not. - Ed

Classic tales

Join your friends Toad (David Jason), Ratty (Peter Sallis), Mole (Richard Pearson) and Badger (Sir Michael Horden) down on the riverbank for some wonderful adventures

You can collect four enchanting tales from The Wind in the Willows (Certificate U, priced £10.99) by VCI on video. The special double box set, called The Four Seasons, is released tomorrow and features May Day, The Grand Annual Show, The Harvest and Winter Sports. Toad, as usual, keeps getting into trouble with the wily Weasles from the Wild Wood, while the others try to fix his mistakes

We have 10 of these classic video sets to give away.

Just tell us a TV programme that David Jason (who is the voice of Toad) has starred in.

A policeman came to our school a few days ago to talk about road safety. He gave us some excellent rules to follow, such as stop, look and listen. He said that if people followed these simple rules, there would be fewer road accidents because most of them involve pedestrians. Our class is now designing posters to help others learn more about road safety, since the holidays are coming!

Amanda Jones, age 10

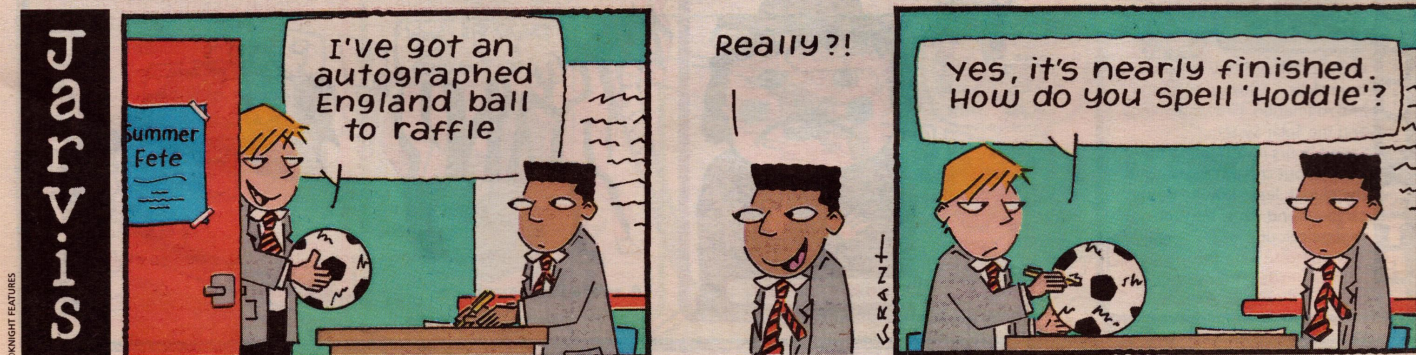

On National Cinema Day, I was really hoping to go to the cinema, but the only film that was not a 12 was The Little Mermaid, which I thought was a bit too young and girlish for an eleven-year-old boy. I think they should have had a wider variety of movies, especially on that day.

Mike Forsyth, age 11

I know quite a few people who have died as a result of cancer - and I think this is sad and worrying. I was on the way to school a few weeks ago and my dad was listening to the news. It said that new tests show that doctors are one step closer to finding a cure. I think that we should be grateful that we live in a world with such advanced technology and cures for a lot of illnesses, which we could never have hoped for 50 years ago.

news

Grease is back!

In 1978, it was the hottest film of the summer – and now Grease, the most popular movie musical of all time, is back to entertain a new generation. Twenty years ago the British premiere at the Empire Leicester Square drew more than 2,000 screaming fans, who mobbed Olivia Newton-John and John Travolta trapping them in their car before police could ease the crush. Hit songs like You're The One That I Want and Summer Nights topped the UK charts for several months and the soundtrack album is the most successful ever. Catch the film at cinemas from July 3, and start collecting our Grease Fact Files in The Funday Times today!

Fact File

Grease

Grease is 111 minutes long and was given an A certificate – which is equivalent to a PG today.

Playing 18-year-old Danny Zuko and Sandy Olsson, John Travolta was 23 and Olivia Newton-John was actually 28.

Filming took place during a particularly hot Californian summer, with temperatures soaring to 38C every day – leaving the dancers with make-up streaming down their costumes.

Set at fictitious Rydell High school in 1959, Grease was filmed at Huntingdon Park High School in a suburb of Los Angeles.

Unflappable!

Pilots at an air base had to supply their duck mascot with a life jacket when they found out that he couldn't swim. Brickie, as the flight crews have named their feathered friend, because he sinks like a brick, had to be rescued from the airfield pond following his first attempt to take to the water. Squadron leader Mike Toft at RAF Marham, Norfolk, said: "He came from a farmyard and we think he had never swum before and so lost essential oils which ducks need to float." Un-bill-levable!

Rising with the Sun

This Saturday sees the opening of the British Museum's first ever exhibition devoted entirely to the Maori people of New Zealand – and it opens with a spectacular dawn celebration. On display will be more than 500 objects, ranging from huge war canoes to exquisitely carved ornaments, treasure chests and tribal sculptures. There will also be a collection of unique items brought back by the explorer Captain James Cook from his three voyages to the islands in the Southern Hemisphere known to their original inhabitants as Aotearoa, or the Land of the Long White Cloud.

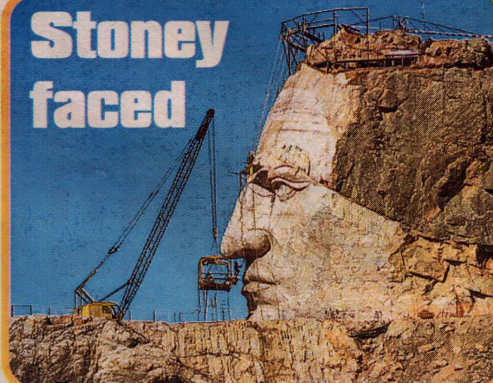

Maori continues until November

Trouble in store

A short-sighted thief managed to take a shop-dummy hostage, when his robbery attempt went wrong at a fashion store in Rome. Not realising his mistake, the man started to drag the plastic mannequin towards the exit, trying to make a swift escape. Smiling security guards quickly cornered the myopic miscreant and arrested him! He was later charged with shoplifting, kidnap and offered an eye test!

Stoney faced

The head of what will one day be the world's largest statue, bigger than any of the Pyramids, has been unveiled in the Black Hills of South Dakota in America. Standing 30 metres high, the proud profile of Red Indian Chief Crazy Horse is just the first part of a monumental project which began back in 1939 and will only be completed towards the end of the 21st century. A team of stonemasons led by Polish-American sculptor Korczak Ziolkowski have blasted away millions of tons of rock from the mountain side. But they will need to remove many millions more before Ziolkowski's gigantic vision of Crazy Horse sitting astride his stallion with his finger pointing towards his homeland finally becomes a reality.

Did you know?

The first Lawn Tennis Championships were held in 1877 at the Worple Road Ground. There were 22 players in the tournament, which was won by Spencer Gore.

The Championships moved from Worple Road to the now famous setting in Church Road in 1922.

The grass on Wimbledon's courts is kept between 6 and 8mm long for the Championships. During the winter it is allowed to grow to 15mm.

More than 750,000 gallons of water are used each year, to keep the famous grass courts in tip-top condition.

The ladies' singles was introduced in 1884, with 13 women competing. The winner was Maud Watson.

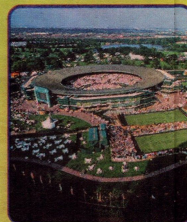

The traditional Wimbledon colours, dark green and purple, appeared in 1909.

Wimbledon's famous Royal Box contains 75 dark green wicker chairs!

The first junior singles events started in 1948. Both boys and girls participated.

Since 1963, players in the tournament have had to wear predominantly white sports kit. But the rules were tightened up in 1995. Now, gear must be almost entirely white, and players have to submit their clothes to the Club for approval before the Championships start.

There are 182 ball boys and girls employed at the Championships each year.

Records smashed

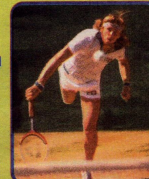

1980

Bjorn Borg (right) won the men's final and became the first player to win five times in a row for nearly 100 years.

1985

A 17-year-old from Germany won the men's title becoming the first German, the youngest player and the first unseeded player to win at Wimbledon. His name? Boris Becker! (left)

1990

The great Martina Navratilova (right) won her ninth women's singles title, taking the all-time record.

Game, set and LONG match!

Two of the most famous names in tennis, Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe (left), slugged it out for a record four hours and 16 minutes in the longest men's singles final ever in 1982. The score was 3-6, 6-3, 6-7, 7-6, 6-4. For the record, Connors won the titanic battle.

The ladies' epic singles match

Billy Jean King (right) and Margaret Court played for two hours and 28 minutes, in the longest women's final. Margaret Court conquered in the 1970 match 14-12, 11-9.

ALBUM

FIVE Five ★★★★★

J, Abs, Scott, Rich and Sean can now truly crown themselves the kings of pop! Their self-titled debut album is bulging with 16 terrific tracks, and there's not a dud in sight. The lads get slow, without getting sloppy, rap it up with a vengeance, and produce some perfect pop tracks along the way. Since they burst into the charts with Slam Dunk Da Funk, the boys have really found their feet and this collection proves the fab Five are set to become the very famous Five.

REVOLVER by Tyco ★★★★★

Revolver might look a bit bizarre, with its two metal hoops, but they make it a joy to use. You virtually never have to chase Revolver under the furniture, to untangle or reposition it, because the revving racer always rolls back into the right position. It's also a whiz at impressive spins, which are quite simple to master. And a handy slow-speed setting is great for novice users to get to grips with the steering, before turning up the power to full throttle. Just watch it go!

LEAVE 'EM SOMETHING TO DESIRE Sprinkler ★★★★★

Sprinkler are Lucas Secon, a New York rapper and producer, and Chardel Rhoden, a London-born singer, who was once a nursery school teacher. They're a cool combination, he raps while she sings. Leave 'em Something to Desire has a luxurious, soul vibe that's really infectious and the debut album, which they put together in less than three weeks, is in the bag! So, don't expect Sprinkler to take their time conquering the charts.

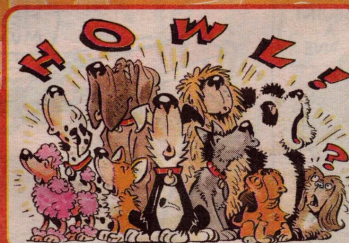

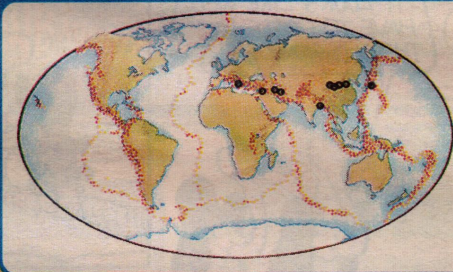

DAGSY DOG

Woof, woof!
Earthquakes cause much devastation when they hit - as you can see by the recent disaster in Afganistan. Let me tell you a bit about them.

Dear Dagsy,
What is seismology?
Karla Laird, age 11,
Glasgow
Seismology is the study of earthquakes. A person who studies these natural disasters is called a seismologist.

It is reported that dogs howl, pandas moan and well water bubbles before an earthquake strikes.

Earthquakes happen where there are fractures in the Earth's crust. These are called faults. This map of the world shows you where the fault zones are.

Our planet is made up of plates. Earthquakes often occur when one plate slides under another. Nearly 90% happen in the Ring of Fire around the Pacific Ocean.

If you have a question for me or you want to send in a cool fact, write to:

The west coast of America experiences quakes quite regularly, as does Japan. San Francisco had a devastating earthquake in 1906 and Kobe (right) was hit badly in 1995.

Jonty Rhodes

Despite all the attention that is coming the way of the World Cup footballers, England's cricketers are still locked in a tough battle with South Africa. The visitors have got some great players, but the one you simply cannot ignore is Jonty Rhodes – the world's best fielder. He's a quick runner, picks the ball up perfectly every time and throws it with total accuracy. On top of all that, he also scored 95 runs in the first Test to help South Africa out of a tight spot. Look out for Jonty when the Second Test resumes today!

- When he was a boy, Jonty had a medical condition called epilepsy. He wasn't allowed to play rugby so took up hockey and played the game for many years
- He is 28 years old and married his wife, Kate, four years ago
- Jonty is a cheerful player who is one of South Africa's most popular sportsmen. He gets 1,500 letters a week
- He once took five catches in a single one-day international against India – a world record
- Jonty's advice to anybody who wants to play sport is: "Do all the hard work, but love what you are doing"

YOU'RE A LEGEND

The start of Wimbledon means that everybody is thinking about tennis and the big argument always is: who are the greatest-ever players? There are plenty to choose from but, among the women, one name stands out – Martina Navratilova.

She was born in Czechoslovakia in 1956, but became an American citizen when she was 25. By that time, Martina was already established as one of the top players in the world, but she continued playing for many years. In fact, when Martina stopped playing singles tennis, she was 38 years old. In the course of her amazing career, Martina won 167 singles titles, including an incredible nine Wimbledon championships. She brought in a new era of women's tennis, one of attacking play and peak fitness. However you look at it, Martina Navratilova was one of the all-time greats!

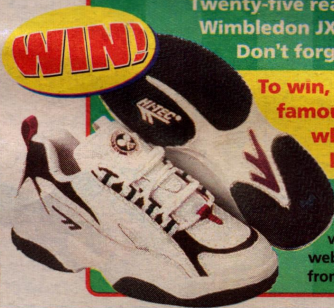

It's an ace!

Did you know, during Wimbledon tennis championships ball girls and boys will be on their feet collectively for about 15,000 hours? And they'll be sporting shoes from the Hi-Tec Wimbledon range. You could be too!

Twenty-five readers can win a pair of Wimbledon JX tennis shoes (£30.00). Don't forget to tell us your size!

To win, tell us the name of the famous Wimbledon court where the men's and ladies' final is held.

To buy these shoes or any others from the Hi-Tec Wimbledon range, visit the Wimbledon shop or website: www.hi-tecsports.co.uk from June 8 to July 14
